

Dear Prospective John Bapst Student,

Which high school is the right one for you?

The choice is all about the future – which means it’s all about you. We encourage you to review all the information you can, including the accompanying John Bapst materials. Then we invite you to visit our website at johnbapst.org, come to our presentations, and talk to current John Bapst families. Once you do, we think you’ll have all you need to make that choice. And we think you’ll choose John Bapst.

Here’s why...

John Bapst is a comfortable community. The friendships you make here last a lifetime, and the support you feel from teachers and other students encourages you to spread your wings in academics, sports, music, art, drama, clubs, and service.

John Bapst is a college-prep high school with outstanding teachers known for inspiring and challenging students. That makes it a great school for students with strong aspirations.

John Bapst is a small school, which means you really matter here. Yet we’re big enough to offer one of the most varied athletic programs in the state and outstanding programs in music, drama, and visual arts.

So take the next step. Come visit the school – just give us a call and arrange for a tour. Or join us for Step-up Day on February 5. It’s a great way to see the school in action. Then fill out an application. It’s simple. It’s free. And though most applicants complete the process in the spring, we consider applications until mid-August.

We wish you the best as you make your high school decision – and we hope to see you at John Bapst next fall!

Very best wishes,

Mel MacKay
Head of School
